

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides methods of coevolving components of biological and other systems to prepare evolved components with improved or other desired properties. Coevolution processes can include one or more cycles of in vitro diversification and selection. In some embodiments, methods of coevolving involve antibodies or antigens for the preparation of therapeutics or vaccines.